Comprehensive Exemptions The California Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA) provides for many exemptions to its anti-discrimination provisions. In addition to the many legally recognized exemptions, the FEHA permits the granting of any reasonable exemption for any reasons that are the legitimate business needs of the employer. If you believe that you are the victim of unlawful discrimination, we urge you to contact us to discuss the facts of your situation and whether or not you qualify for an exemption under the FEHA. Exemptions under the California FEHA Election. An employer may exempt the operation of its business from certain provisions of the FEHA under section 13558. Hardship. An employer may exempt from its antidiscrimination obligations the provision of a job for an individual who is ill, injured, pregnant, a military or reservist, or who is subject to court order. Management. An employer may exempt employees in managerial positions who are directly involved in decisions related to an employee's employment from their duty to follow the FEHA. New Constructions. An employer may exempt a new construction from certain requirements of the FEHA if the employer plans to use the facility as a model for later builds. Religious Creed. An employer may exempt employees from, or accommodate e24f408de9
