This workflow needs to do some custom processing for a specific content type. Right now I can use a workflow to do this, but that workflow can only be used for 1 content type. That is because the workflow type is attached to the site definition. What I'm trying to do is create a workflow that's not attached to a content type, so that multiple content types can use this workflow, and it can have its own state machine. I can't seem to figure out how to do this. A: Creating a custom workflow is quite straight forward. So add a new workflow that inherits the Edit state. Create an inputbox (dialog) with your content type in it. Create an inputbox (dialog) for the specific field that you will be using.
