improvements. Elisa Koch Elisa Koch

(born 28 February 1985) is a German racing driver. She competed in the 2005

Women in Motorsport Worldwide event in 2005 and was the 2006 Mercedes SLK

Cup champion. In 2009 she was part of the winning BMW M3 DTM Team

Schubert and was a race winner in the 2009 season. In 2010 Koch drove for Mücke Motorsport in the DTM and had a best finish of seventh place. She was a race winner at the 2010 ADAC GT Masters and in 2011 she returned to the Mercedes Cup. Racing career Koch began her racing career in karting at the age of nine in 2001, finishing second in the German championships and became German Junior Champion. In 2003 she raced in the Formula D championship, finishing second. She raced in the 2004 Formula A championship, finishing fifth, and also raced in the Porsche Carrera Cup Germany, finishing fourth, and raced in the Formula 3 Euroseries championship with the racing team Racing Engineering, where she finished sixth. In 2005 she took part in the inaugural Women in Motorsport Worldwide event, driving a 2004-specification Mercedes-Benz SLK.

Her time in the 2005 Women in Motorsport Worldwide event came when she ran out of fuel on the first lap of the race, causing her to retire and resulting in a seventh-place finish overall. Koch moved into German and European competition with the racing team Schubert in 2006. She raced in the Mercedes SLK Cup, and was the champion. She finished the season ranked seventh in the W

New Jersey, 444 U.S. 891, 100 S.Ct. 195, 62 L.Ed.2d 126 (1979), the Supreme Court acknowledged that "[t]he `theory of partial physical occupancy' is not a part of [the] over-all statutory scheme." Id. at 894, 100 S.Ct. at 197, 62 L.Ed.2d at 130.

Therefore, because the body of the statute's language, see supra p. 109, 995 A.2d at 660, quoted supra p. 110, 995 A.2d at 660, is completely inapplicable to the factual setting in this case, we are left with the statutory language cited in the preceding sentence. The only general definition of "place of residence" that a plain-reading of subsection (i) can sustain is that it applies to the specified "place of residence," i.e., the home of the witness. The state's reliance on In re J.E.T., 150 N.J. 138, 695 A.2d 633 (1997), is similarly inapposite. The Supreme Court held that the emergency exception applied in that case "because petitioner was unable to return home to her place of residence and was injured while she was away from her home." Id. at 144, 695 A.2d at 637. The facts of this case do not support a finding that R.G. was at the "place of residence" of her father, the mother's place of 1d6a3396d6

It allows you to import links from the installed browsers and comes with a built-

The name came to me as a child and is the nickname of the brother of my childhood friend, of the same age as I was when we met. Just now, when I read the following words for the first time, my friend's brother reappeared in my mind's eye and I had to use them.) My friend's brother is a great name for a rock. Or at least I would be if I had named a rock after him. But the rock is called the Cairn Up and it's in Wales. It sits on a mountaintop outside of a town named Llanfairfechan. It's a part of the Preseli Hills that jut into Cardigan Bay, which lies to the south. The Cairn Up is a Scottish rock. That's to say that the Scottish name for the rock is the Cairn of the Up. But the name of the Scottish mountain is Meall Cairn of the Up and it's a much better name. I've never been to the Cairn Up but I've been to Meall Cairn of the Up and I've been in Wales. Anyway, I suppose that's a little digression into the past. I don't know why the Cairn Up calls to me from the hills outside of Llanfairfechan, but it does. Since I discovered the name Cairn Up, I've been looking at pictures of the mountain and wondering if the famous Dr. Richard Gregory had ever been there. In his book The Shape of Pleasure, he describes a hill near the village of Aberfeldy that has the most wondrously sculpted rock features he'd ever seen. It was called Meall Greshinigig and he found it absolutely stunning. It was in 1936. But my friend and his brother, whose name is Cairn Up, were still kids in 1936. When I was thirteen, my friend and I visited the village of Llanfairfechan on holiday. On the Saturday we were there, we walked up to the cliffs of the Cairn Up, looking for the Meall Cairn of the Up, the Cairn of the Up, the Cairn of
